Party Aid

Diners have lost something of their charm in the last generation. But The Diner has found it on the Chelsea/Meatpacking District border. Soon to be open 24 hours a day, Diner's philosophy is to take simple food and do it right. And it's refreshing to have a staff that actually knows the menu. We like the grilled salmon with tomato-fennel salsa ($14.95), and they'll tell you, and the goat cheese chicken quesadillas ($6.95), Diner Burger ($10.95), and steak sandwich ($13.95) are also popular choices. If you're buzzing for a drink, the Meatpacking Mudslide and Blue Lagoon (both $8) can take you where you want to go. They're on to something here, and people are taking notice, as evidenced by the long lines during the neighborhood's drunk hours.
